Fundinfo expands in Europe

By Sandra Heistrüvers 15 July 2014

Fundinfo, the Swiss platform for international fund information, has set up three new sites as part of a major expansion in Europe and Asia.

The Zurich-based firm, which regards itself as the leading international platform for information and mandatory publications of investment funds, has created new subsidiaries in London, Madrid and Singapore in order to improve its services for existing and new clients, and extend its range of services.

The firm has hired Josef Molvidsson for the new London site and has appointed Alexander Looijen for the new Singapore office.

In Spain, Fundinfo has co-operated with local firm Kessler & Casadevall Asesoramiento Financiero for some time. The company says the opening of the Madrid office will enable it to strengthen this collaboration and broaden its local presence.

Jan Giller, head of marketing and sales at Fundinfo, says “the UK and Spain are both important fund distribution markets in Europe”, adding that the two new offices will bring the firm closer to its clients in the two countries.

Apart from the Zurich headquarters and the three new sites, Fundinfo has offices in Frankfurt and Hong Kong.

The firm provides free access to more than eight million documents, fund manager videos and ratings for the funds of more than 700 different asset managers.
