Credit Suisse InvestLab AG partners with fundinfo for fund data management

Zürich, 18 October 2018 – Credit Suisse's investment product platform Credit Suisse InvestLab AG has joined forces with Zurich-based fundinfo AG to collect and source centralized data from asset managers. Both companies are founding members of openfunds (www.openfunds.org), a non-profit association that provides a global standard for the efficient and automated exchange of fund data. Thanks to the partnership with fundinfo, Credit Suisse InvestLab AG can provide its clients with complete and accurate static data needed for fund distribution, including MiFID II and PRIIPs data. This partnership strengthens the information management and data dissemination solutions, which are key elements of Credit Suisse InvestLab AGs offering.

“fundinfo is a longstanding partner of ours and we are pleased to expand our cooperation. Accurate and timely provision of static fund data is crucial to meet increasingly complex regulatory requirements,” said Jörg Grossmann, CEO of InvestLab AG.

“We are very proud to be Credit Suisse InvestLab’s preferred partner for the collection and delivery of fund data. This agreement deepens our partnership with respect to the development of industry standards, as well as the reliable, end-to-end dissemination of high-quality fund information to Credit Suisse clients around the world,” said Jan Giller, Chief Commercial Officer at fundinfo.

As Credit Suisse and fundinfo actively use and support openfunds, all fund providers are requested to provide fundinfo with their static fund data in the openfunds standard. Leading international financial institutions and asset managers are among the steadily growing number of members of the openfunds association who are continuously developing the standard.
